Aspects of Albert

Ecology was the topic for noted television actor Eddie Albert, when he spoke at yesterday's forum assembly.

As shown by the pictures the versatile actor showed many facets of the talent which led him to stardom.

Judging by his expressions Albert, who starred for six years in the CBS production Green Acres, very much enjoyed the opportunity to speak on the environment.

Albert has become deeply involved in the field of ecology and other areas of humanitarian concern during recent years, and it was this side of the performer shown to the BYU audience. For the whole story on his forum speech see page three.

First Presidency

Smut fight urged

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints urged today its members "fight the inroads of pornography in their communities."

A statement signed by President Harold Lee and his counselors, Presidents N. Eldon Tanner and Marion G. Romney, said, "There is abundant evidence of the damaging effect of obscenity on the integrity of the family, on the moral fiber of the individual."

The statement said "pornographic filth continues to flood this country as well as other nations of the world."

It specified obscenity in print, on record and tape, on television and in motion pictures.

"We therefore urge Latter-day Saints parents to teach their children to avoid all of its many insidious forms," the church leaders said, adding quotes from church scriptures praising virtue and urging church members to "keep their purity and uncleanness far from them."

"We also encourage Latter-day Saints as citizens to exert every effort to fight the roads of pornography in their communities," the statement said. "History is replete with examples of nations which have fallen in a large measure through licentiousness."

The statement came amid controversies in Salt Lake City and Ogden over the opening of stores dealing in sexual films, books, magazines and other products.

Court cases are pending against both of the stores.

Council agenda set

More by-law revisions and a proposed communications system between the branches and the ASBYU Executive Council heads the agenda at today's Council meeting at 4 p.m. in 378 ELWC.

The Council will also discuss questions to be asked on a polling service it is sponsoring in the future. The weekly visits to the dorms by members of the Executive Council will be discussed, too.

Office space and arrangements for Student Development will also be brought up during the session. Council meetings are open to all students.

Change in policy slated for ticket distribution

Two major revisions in ticket distribution will be instituted at Homecoming, announced Randy Smith, Athletics vice president.

One change had been previously hinted by Smith after the clogged conditions at the last home game. Officials now propose to have two pick up points to alleviate the burden in certain areas of the ELWC.

Seating for all branches will be available at the booths set up in the ELWC Ballroom. All guest pass seating, general block seating, clubs and card stunt passes will be distributed in 396 ELWC.

"This change is, of course, to help eliminate the long lines and congestion we had to contend with during the last distribution period," Smith explained.

The main revision, however, is the rotating number system. Students must now begin picking up their tickets according to the last digit of their student number.

The student who picks up the tickets must have an ID which corresponds with the last digit that is allowed to be picked at that time. This ID must be the holder's own card.

Numbers six and seven will be allowed to pick up tickets at all distribution points beginning at 8 a.m. and continuing until all lines close at 5 p.m. Eight and nine may begin pick up at 9:30 a.m. continuing all day. Digits zero and one start at 11 a.m. while two and three may pick up beginning at 12:30 p.m. Four and five may begin at 2 p.m.

"All this means," Smith explained, "is that persons holding cards with certain numbers cannot begin pick-up of their tickets until certain hours. This way, we feel that we can break up the massive crowding at certain hours, like at 10 a.m. when no one has any classes."

Officials in the Athletics Office felt because the numbers will rotate, everyone will have the chance to pick up beginning at 8 a.m. eventually. The system will continue through basketball season to assure "easy and fair" distribution.

Smith stressed students may only buy one guest pass at regular ticket pick up points. If students wish to obtain more than one, they must go to the Marriott Center for tickets.

All other portions of the previously specified ticket policy will remain the same. Distribution will continue on Thursdays beginning at 8 a.m.

"We will have a line at 5 p.m. for line tickets and leftovers," Smith said. "It will start in the west side of the main ballroom, and chairs will be provided for the first 300 people."

Classes will be dismissed

Classes will be dismissed Friday during the 10 a.m. and 11:10 a.m. hours to permit students and faculty to witness the Solemn Assembly of the Church semi-annual conference to be carried on closed circuit television in the Marriott Center from the Salt Lake Tabernacle.

According to Ben E. Lewis, executive vice-president, university offices will remain open to provide essential services. However, staff members may listen to the session where broadcast facilities are available or part of the staff may attend in the Marriott Center if the offices remain adequately staffed.

Educators meet

LDS Church Education Commissioner Neal A. Maxwell, left, discusses an education development slide presentation with Church higher education officials during "President's Council" meeting Tuesday on campus. Left to right standing are Maxwell Associate Commissioner Joe J. Christensen, Ricks College President Henry B. Eyring, Associate Commissioner Dee F. Anderson, BYU President Dallin H. Oaks and seated left to right Associate Commissioner Kenneth H. Beesley, LDS Business College President R.F. Kirkham and Church College of Hawaii President Stephen L. Brower.

Says actor Albert

'Nature must be preserved'

The beauty of nature is what we've got to preserve."

Id actor Eddie Albert in yesterday's forum assembly.

"This is a beautiful community. It should be thankful for it," added Albert, a self-proclaimed biology buff.

In Los Angeles it's different. Up the hills, someone was ordered. We knew that she had died in LA only a short time cause the autopsy showed her lungs were clean, Albert quipped. During a smog alert, kids can't even run and play without getting asthma or emphysema, Albert noted.

"WHEN GOD GAVE man dominion over the earth, it didn't mean man could poison the earth with chemicals or scar it with strip mining. Nor did it mean that man could cover the earth with a fiery subsoil," said Albert.

"Dominion means stewardship, love and appreciation," he continued.

"We've made some terrible mistakes in the past," Albert asserted.

One time while photographing Pelicans on an island, I noticed the eggs were all broken. The shells weren't strong enough to support the weight of the nesting pelican, the actor said.

The problem could be traced directly to the widespread use of DDT, he reflected.

DDT IS ABSORBED by plankton and then eaten by fish, Chariot races set for meet in quad

Anything on wheels that can be pulled and has a seatbelt can be entered in a chariot race scheduled for the McKay Quad sidewalk Friday, Oct. 13, according to Ray Hansen, public relations chairman for Homecoming.

Applications are available at the Homecoming Office, 114 ELWC. Each team needs one driver, one pusher and six pullers. All applications are due Monday, Oct. 9.

Included as part of the race will be sharp hairpin turns, obstacles, danger and excitement, said Hansen.

which in turn are eaten by pelicans. The accumulated DDT weakens the eggshell, said Albert.

"Two weeks ago, I was running along the beach when I saw five young pelicans. It was one of the most joyous sights I've ever seen," Albert said.

"It used to be that a nation would die off, now the world is dying," Albert said.

As an example, he noted northern Africa, once a forest, is now a desert because of improper agricultural techniques.

THE ACTOR said he began to appreciate the beauty of the earth after attending a Zen tea ceremony. There he was taught to observe the simple beauty of the china and a spoon.

Navajo flag given to Dr. Warner

An official Navajo flag was recently presented to Dr. Terry Warner, dean of the College of General Studies.

Chester Yazzie, assistant to Chairman Peter MacDonald of the Navajo nation, made the presentation when he met with approximately 200 Navajo students on campus.

Yazzie, a graduate of BYU, encouraged the Navajo students to take an active part in national, state and campus politics and to register to vote. He said, "Red Power comes through voting, not through rebellion."

Dean Warner also encouraged the students to take an active part in the Indian program on campus and to make suggestions and recommendations to strengthen the program.

It is the desire of Chairman MacDonald, chief of all the Navajo nation, to replace all white men on the Navajo reservation who are in leadership positions with Navajo people, according to Dale Tingey, instructor of American Indian Studies. Tingey said the chairman has been complimentary of BYU as his Navajo people are being trained in education, government, business and farming.

Presently, more Navajos attend BYU than any other college or university, except the Navajo Community College on the reservation.

Classes set-- weight, poise

Two new classes dealing with weight control and visual poise and charm are slated to start today according to the Department of Special Courses and Conferences.

Weight Control Workshop, Oct. 4 - Dec. 13, is designed to help participants lose weight and keep it off through controlled behavior and positive thinking.

Visual Poise and Charm, Oct. 4 - Nov. 8, will include development of self-confidence and grooming skills.

Business talk set

The Vice President for Finance of the San Diego Gas and Electric Co., Will B. Johnstone, will speak to business graduate students today at 3:30 p.m. in A-150, JKB. His topic will be "Challenges and Opportunities Available in the Area of Finance."

Nixon and Gromyko sign nuclear accords

WASHINGTON—President Nixon and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko yesterday placed into force accords to check the superpower nuclear arms race. They joined in a call for continued efforts to remove the danger of war.

The ceremony in the White House East Room included the final steps on a treaty limiting defensive missiles and an executive agreement freezing for five years most of the two nations' long-range nuclear arsenals.

Danes join Common Market

COPENHAGEN—An overwhelming 2-1 vote by Danes to join the European Common Market set off a boom in Copenhagen's stock exchange yesterday, but the prime minister couched a victory speech in parliament with the announcement he is resigning.

The move by Jens Otto Krag came as a surprise. He said his Social Democratic government would remain in power and his step-down as prime minister was "a personal decision."

House rejects investigation

WASHINGTON—The House Banking Committee voted yesterday against a proposed investigation of financial aspects of the break-in at the national Democratic headquarters.

The 20-15 vote dashed Democratic hopes for public hearings before the November election.

IRS tells of tax evasion

ATLANTA, Ga.—Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters says shocking instances of tax evasion schemes by giant corporations have been discovered by the IRS.

Walters told a meeting of tax executives Monday a team-audit program had revealed schemes such as kickbacks and illegal payoffs to avoid tax payment by large corporations.

Party spreads word

Information packets on the American Independent Party, a constitution-oriented political organization, will be available to students in the ELWC West Patio through the November elections.

The party recently opened its Utah County headquarters at 108 West Center, Provo.

Included in each packet is a copy of the best seller, "None Dare Call it Conspiracy," and several handouts explaining the party's platform and candidates.

Gary Allen, AIP director in California and author of the book, will visit BYU during Homecoming.

"Nine million copies of the book are in print today," according to Dennis Dunn, AIP committee head at BYU. "We feel there will be a lot of students out to see Allen as well as Utah County citizens."

The changing times

The recent change in the starting time for the BYU vs. Long Beach State football encounter at Anaheim had an unusual twist.

When Long Beach State first began promotions for its Oct. 6 encounter with BYU, they found ticket sales unusually low among the Southern California Mormons.

Counting on a large crowd from the Mormon community to attend its game, Long Beach began looking for a possible reason for the lack of interest among the Mormons.

About this time, the local LDS officials explained to the Long Beach promoters the game time conflicted with the scheduled LDS General Priesthood meeting.

Mormon officials suggested the time for the game be changed so the priesthood holders could attend both the game and the priesthood meeting.

Dr. Low Comer of Long Beach State acted upon the suggestion and soon contacted BYU Athletic Director, Stan Watts, and asked if BYU would accept a 1:15 p.m. kick-off instead of the scheduled 8 p.m.

Coach Watts gladly accepted the time change. It meant he and his players could hear the priesthood section of conference and participate in the spiritual enlightenment.

A way out for the lonely

Everybody is lonely.

The city dwellers, the farm folk, the old and the young are all lonely. Some thinkers including Maryland Senator Charles McC. Mathias Jr. believe external forces in our crowded society are to blame for our loneliness. Others such as author Erick Kahler blame internal forces. Still there are others who claim loneliness results from both internal and external pressures.

But, no matter where loneliness comes from, the Timpanogos Day Care Center in Provo is doing something to help.

Often individuals through the Provo Crisis Line say they are lonely and are contemplating suicide, says Clinical Psychologist David Seamons. They are not mentally ill so the hospital is not the best solution. What they need is to be active and involved in many areas.

To involve people is the purpose of the center, which sees between 900 and 950 people a month. Activities range from pottery to women's exercise classes. The staff and out-patients have meetings where they give each other feedback. Milieu therapy, which is an informal do-your-own-thing, helps patients know they're not alone in their feelings or situation.

An unnamed BYU student who has attended the center, feels it is a good place to ward off loneliness. "I start playing a game and before I know it I'm playing with someone," she says. "I forget about being lonely."

Such concern on the part of the community and such solutions on the part of the center are commendable of a town often criticized for its lack of action in these areas.

'It's all Greek to me'

The legendary Prometheus was given foresight while his brother Epimetheus was gifted with hindsight.

While Prometheus was forever in trouble with the gods, Epimetheus wasn't (though his wife, Pandora, did have her problems).

But because of his courage in giving the gift of fire to mortals, the name Prometheus has become synonymous with life-bringing, creativity and courage, while the name Epimetheus is synonymous with nothing.

The moral? Those with foresight have a better chance of being successful than those with hindsight. But, having foresight may prove dangerous (Prometheus is now chained to a rock and suffers from chronic intestinal disorders).

Those who possess hindsight are easily recognizable: "I could have passed that test if I'd just spent ten more minutes studying the Protestant Reformation." Or, "Why did I fool around all day Saturday instead of studying?"

Those who possess foresight are able to view the consequences of their actions and make choices with an eye to long-range returns. They make above-average students and successful people.

Hindsighters see the here and now and walk back when better management to face up to tomorrow.

It takes courage to look into eternity and ask oneself, "How will my present actions affect my future?"

It takes no courage to say to oneself, "I'll let it go this time and make up for it next time."

What about those who have no foresight? That should be no problem. Just ask someone who has already been where you're going: "What's it like, how should I act, what will happen to me if I do it this way?"

How can one ask those who have gone before? Well, read a few books, seek a little counsel, ask a few questions, go to college, listen to a few people.

And even if you never develop foresight, you can still become successful through the hindsight of others.

"I HAVE SOME GOOD NEWS, AND SOME BAD NEWS, ... FIRST THE GOOD NEWS, ..."

'Revenue sharers' should vote

Under the auspices if the "old enough to fight, old enough to vote," cry, BYU students should be allowed to vote in local elections.

If their money is good enough to contribute to the community, they should have some voice in who spends the money.

By the same token, and as worn to death it may be, if they are going to live under the arm of a local government for four years or so, why not help to shape that arm?

Upon a note of complaint about the services (or lack of them) provided by the local government, the complainant inevitably hears a flat refrain: "Who are you for it, you just use it."

Alas, disgruntled out-of-state transplant, there is a come-back.

"BYU students contribute to the revenue of the city in two ways," said Provo City Auditor, H. Blaine Hall. "First, they unknowingly contribute to personal property taxes because rent is set by property owners to cover that cost."

"The big contribution to the revenue by BYU students," he continued, "comes in the form of sales tax. Utah County enforces a half cent optional sales tax. The State collects the taxes from businesses every quarter and the half cent option is remitted back to the point of collection, in this case, Provo City."

A study of the estimated budget for Provo City for 1972-73 reveals personal property tax makes up 35 per cent of estimated revenue. Sales tax is included in a 24 per cent contribution to the revenue which comes under the title "other taxes."

BYU students also contribute to the fines and penalties collected by the city. The total of this department equals eight per cent of the total revenue of the city.

So, it can be seen BYU students help to pay for 67 per cent of the total revenue collected by Provo City each year—35 per cent personal property tax plus 24 per cent other taxes, eight per cent fines and penalties.

By contributing to 67 per cent of the revenue of Provo, BYU students are helping to pay for the salaries of elected officials (some $46,000 this year); they are helping the city court and law enforcement agencies to operate; they are contributing to the financing of the new Provo City

Center; they are helping the operation of the Parks and Recreation Department; they are helping to pave roads which are badly worn; they help support the public utilities department.

The City Auditor, an elected official, recommends to the city Commission (the mayor and two commissioners), who also are elected officials, the allocation of funds to the various departments of the government. The commission then decides which department gets what.

It seems only fair that BYU students, who contribute so much to the revenue of the city, should be able to participate in the election process that selects those officials.

If BYU students are expected to live and function under the arm of the elected officialdom, paying the penalty if they don't, it seems only fair that they should be able to have a voice in the decision—something more than just campaigning for a candidate.

Where would Provo's economy be without them?

Nixon cuts 'X' movies

President Nixon could not have chosen a better forum in which to assert no X-rated movie will be shown in the White House as long as he is living in it. He said so at a recent party he and Mrs. Nixon gave in San Clemente for perhaps the biggest assemblage of Hollywood stars in history.

It isn't that these stars or the major Hollywood studios specialize in X-rated movies. But even so, the quality of major Hollywood productions has been dragged down by the decline in moral values in the entertainment world. If movies are going to get out of the gutter, Hollywood will have to lead them out.

The uncompromising attitude of the First Family may help nudge the pendulum back toward sanity and honest creativity in the film business.

LONDON (UPI) — English is only one of five languages spoken in the British Isles as a native tongue.

Welsh is spoken by a quarter of the people in Wales. About 81,000 persons in Scotland speak a Scottish form of Gaelic, while some families in Northern Ireland speak Irish Gaelic.

French is the official language of the island of Jersey, and a Norman-French patois is used throughout the Channel Islands. On the Isle of Man, certain official pronouncements are in Manx.

THANKS

editor:
We wish we could personally thank all one of the wonderful students to give blood for my brother.
Their response to a plea published in the Universe last Thursday was more
an adequate.

We will be forever grateful for their aid and for their cooperation too,
in we take the way of saying "Thank you so very much."

HUNTING IS A KID'S GAME

Ann Warlock's editorial was mostly fine, she clinches her point for our city overtly concerned with destroying animals. I fear, however, that being a man, she has not looked deeply into my men do what they do. But in I past time to reveal what has been of ladders for centuries. Gather your guts about you, Ann. This may come a bit of a shocker.

Men are as they are because of men.
Consider reality, dear girl, from the male, the most important and decisive factor on character formation is the father... Think of who is closest born to the babe who will be a six-foot, husky later in life. Check out who it is David O.
Key said teaches the small child confidence by telling that child to do nothing and then allows him to do it. Oh, who tells Junior not to do anything and then allows him to do it instead of showing by example how he performs in life... Mom. Later, who is blaming everything that goes rotten in the world on the men, on those male creatures with their blundering and egotistical ways? The little woman.

Ah, how I tire of hearing the male depicted as dictatorial, gross, mean,
contemptuous, despotic, blind, foolish,
racist, bigoted and murderously
evil...

The great majority of us were globe of poetry in the soft white heads of "loving" females who, from Olay On, taught us false personification by combination of a lack of training and the giving of anything we desired... The only course we could take was to believe that whatever we did was good and necessary. By ignoring real love, which contains a tender but firm discipline for teaching self-control, the girls made us incapable of being almost anything but self-centered... There are exceptions, but you'll have to look far and wide for them. Such rare men are every trying to keep human while living among the rest of us.

Next time you write about hunting, Ann, think of the background of those thousands of men and boys—and women—who take to the highways and bills by the truckload when that season starts. You and your sisters made us what we are today; excuse me a moment...
He's startled! You got him.

Winchesters packed? We only got two hours before today...

PHYSICIAN HEAL THYSELF

Editor:
An Associated Press report under the heading "New Orleans offers foreigners drug haven" has been published on the September 29 issue of Daily Universe.
I would like to help correct the impression it leaves on a reader.

Foreigners who want to visit places of tourist interest (by throwing a ride for an elephant) are always welcome to India. By tradition, alcohol, drugs and other alien habits are forbidden in Indian families. It is a common knowledge that drugs are no social problem in India. Drugs may be sold cheap there, but there is hardly anyone to pay for the dirt. As many a tourist man has long hair and negligent attire, it is difficult to distinguish between hippies and a V.I. student among foreign visitors. When you see a long hair with beads all over him asking you the path to Swami's (Haven) or to a place of interest or Krishna's you do not lead him to Hotel Crown in New Orleans. When we encourage visitors from the so-called advanced countries, we implicitly assume that they are equally intelligent to distinguish between the rose gardens and the drug hide-outs.

It has been complained that the Indian Government does not arrest
the drug users. Both the Indian Police and the courts have difficulty in meeting the needs of the country itself.
It may not be in the interest of the authorities to show more real hospitality when you are not inviting bad publicity for both

One suggestion could be to buy place like Hotel Crown (like substance being paid to grow growing countries), though it may not be viable. When a person gets abroad, he is supposed to take preventive shots against epidemics. It would be more sense, I think, to weed out long hair, glazed suits, and jerky movements in an airport. Airport than to count dead men in Connaught Place in New Orleans.
America is a great nation respected
all over the world as the shining light of progress of this century. If there cannot be a real Thyself, there are no physicians who where.

LOOK AT THE LAWS

Editor:
I am writing this in regard to the hunting editorial.

The first things Ann was are the same things I have heard used for years to condemn hunting. She tells of things hunters do illegally. She claims, among other things, that hunters use airplanes, speedboats, helicopters, dogs and unmovable to hunt.

I would like to inform her of some Albino laws. It is illegal to shoot from or across a public highway, to shoot at a game animal from a mechanically powered vehicle or boat, to hunt big game except bear or cougar with dogs,
to use a helicopter to transport game, hunters, or their gear to and from anything but an established landing field, to spot game with an aircraft and signal, by any means, this information to hunters on the ground and to molest or drive any game with aircraft,
motor-driven vehicle, boat or submer-

This coupled with the fact that the game animal has better sense than a man, knows the area well and has considerable natural camouflage changes the odds in favor of the animal.

A little something for you to think about: which has the best chance of survival, a deer in a forest whose final destiny is a slaughterhouse, or a deer in several square miles of mountains or brush? If the hunter is a true hunter (not a waster) game kills both animals end up on the table as food.

More bikeshit road, more land in street

Once you start that bike, you are taking your life in your own hands.

That's virtually what anyone does when he joins the throng of new cyclists in pursuit of their sport and business.

There is no room for cycles
and cars on the same roadway," grewed an unnamed official of the American Automobile Association in an interview with the Christian Science Monitor.
And statistics of bicycle accidents
and fatalities would tend to bear him out. In competition between the bike and the car, the car inevitably wins. And in close competition with slick streets, wet leaves and drainage grates, the bicycle comes out a poor second too.

Perhaps bicyclists are too free-wheeling, feel too confident as more and more of their numbers hit the road, because more and more of their numbers are landing in the street.

In Texas, for example, there has been a sharp rise in the number of deaths and injuries resulting from bicycle accidents according to their Department of Public Safety. In the first six months of 1972, 32 people were killed in biking accidents, as compared to 12 in all of 1970 and a half dozen in 1971.

Safety experts advise bikers to take it all seriously, to obey traffic rules that apply to them as well as auto drivers, to be sure their equipment is in good condition, to just be careful.

But it can happen to the best of bikers.

The president of a Rochester,
N.Y. Bicycling Club was killed last July when a dog darted in front of his bike and caused him to fall and strike his head.

Small children, of course, fall off their bikes a lot. But when adults fall off, they stand a good chance of wrecking knees, wrists

or, more seriously, their heads.

Bicycle experts have begun to recommend that cyclists wear special helmets to protect their heads.

The problem with regular motorcycle-type helmets, a local cyclist says, is that you can't hear the traffic around you; the problem with hiking helmets is they don't really protect your head from skunk but scratches.

The best way to keep from run-ins with cars, of course, is to keep off streets, and there is pressure among local bike enthusiasts and suggestions
by the Daily Universe for bike paths would provide safe transit for bikers. That will be up to the Provo council to decide.

Until such time as bikers do have their own roads and highways, how can they protect themselves from motorized or natural dangers? Eugene Sloane, cycling expert, devotes an entire chapter to safety tips in his book, "Complete Book of Bicycling,"
which he says, if followed, "you invariably never have a bicycle accident."

Forthwith, sampling of his
major points:

1. Follow laws set for autos.
Don't run red lights, or skip stop signs because you cannot move out of the way fast enough if a car comes barreling through an intersection. If you are violating the law, you'll find it very hard to collect any insurance. If you survive the whole thing.

2. Ride with the traffic, not against it.

3. Never ride on a city street where parking is not allowed.
"There is simply no room for you
between the traffic and the gutter on streets where car parking is forbidden." On streets where cars are parked, you should have room between the parked cars and the moving traffic to safely maneuver
your bike.

4. Watch for car doors opening ahead of you. If you run into an opening door, you will be thrown for a disastrous loop. To help yourself, watch through back windows and side-view mirrors of cars you approach.

5. Cycle in a straight unwavering line so you can learn to turn your head to check traffic behind you.

6. An intersection, be cautious. Don't assume cars will stop at stop signs, especially in a suburban area.

7. While riding in the city, have hands on brake levers at all times,
keep toe straps loose.

8. Avoid routhour motorists, they are meaner than other drivers, Sloane says.

9. Always give right-of-way to pedestrians.

10. If you are planning to ride
your bike downtown, plan a route
which will avoid main arteries.

11. Watch out for driveways where cars may be pulling out,
and buses, which pull in and out of traffic lanes.

12. Wear a helmet, at least for city traffic, make sure your bike is well equipped with lights and reflectors. Consider wearing gloves.

13. If you ride in the rain, take corners carefully. Avoid wet leaves. Remember you are less visible to drivers. Wear blue or yellow sunglasses to keep rain
from your eyes.

14. Watch out for storm sewer gratings, into which a wheel can drop.

15. Beware of man's best friend.
Best defense, Sloane says, is a slender whip fastened to the handlebar stem. One quick smack across the nose should deter a vicious dog.

16. If you are carrying a child, put it in a seat on the back, not on the front of the bike.

NEW BOOKS

IN TIME FOR CONFERENCE

The BYU Bookstore has just received sixteen new books just in time for October Conference. All by popular Church authors. The new books include such selections as: THE LIFE OF PRESIDENT JOSEPH FIELDING SMITH by Joseph Fielding Smith, Jr. and John J Stewart, FAITH PRECEDES THE MIRACLE by Edward L. Kimball, EXCEPTIONAL STORIES FROM THE LIVES OF OUR APOSTLES by Leon R. Hartshorn, WOMAN AND THE PRIESTHOOD by Rodney Turner, and PROFILES OF THE PRESIDENTS by Emerson Roy West. These new books and others are at the BYU Bookstore now, so come in and pick out the one you have been waiting for today.

Cats begin Tucker defense

Prestige, pride and preservation all go on the line today as the BYU golf team tees off in Albuquerque in the 18th annual William H. Tucker Invitational.

The list of entrants in the journey reads like a Who's Who in college golf. The top five teams in last year's NCAA tournament are on hand, along with most of the other top teams in the nation.

Last Fall the Cougars walked from New Mexico with the Tucker team title. The achievement vaulted the Cats into national golfing prominence. During the entire year, they were ranked in the top five.

Coach Karl Tucker is hoping his '72 team without Ray Leach can repeat as champions and preserve the distinction. A new individual champ will be crowned. All-American Leach won individual honors last year, leading the Cougar claw to the crown.

As a team, the Cougars fired 117 strokes last year, to ease into the title 14 strokes ahead of the University of Florida. Squad members were Leach, Dave Shipley, Joey Dills, Bob Lopic, Rusty Guernsey and Randy Tiesera.

The Cougars have played in two tournaments this year to prepare for the Tucker Invitational. Both efforts resulted in team titles, at the Patio Springs and Beehive Invitionals. Because these two tournaments were played on Utah soil, the New Mexico trip is the first journey outside the state for the Cats.

Dills and Lopic are the only members of the 1971 defending championship team who will be on hand for the title defense this year. Dills is favored to lead the Cougar charge, after a first place showing in the Patio Springs event.

Jeff Ellis and Lance Suzuki will backhome the Cougar charge along with newcomers to the Cougar team who are being counted on by Tucker for winning contributions. These include freshmen Mike Reid and Charles Barenaba. Reid and Ellis were the top Cats in this past weekend's Beehive Invitational, with Barenaba third best.

All golfers in the tourney will be aiming at two individual records, both owned by former Cougar duffers. In 1964 BYU's Mike Taylor carded a single round

BYU golfer Bob Lopic was on the winning Tucker Invitational team last year, and will contribute again this year to the Cougar cause as the Cats begin their title defense today in Albuquerque.

64 for the best ever in that category, and in 1967 Cougar great Johnny Miller fired a tournament total 285, to set the finest standard in Tucker history.

The 72-hole tournament will run through Saturday. Site of the event is the University of New Mexico south golf course. A par 72 layout, the Albuquerque course covers 7,200 yards and is notorious for its tough finishing holes.

Favored to win the event in many pre-tournament minds is the University of Texas, defending NCAA champions. Other teams to watch, along with BYU, include the host New Mexico team, Arizona State, Houston and Florida.

Extramural sports are designed at BYU to give students an opportunity to compete with athletes from other universities in sports not included in the intercollegiate program. Information for men's intramurals may be obtained at 273-E Richard's building, while similar information for women is available at 296 RB.

We pflubbed

It never fails. As soon as a person starts making a "name" for himself, someone comes along and tells you the name being made is being misspelled.

Such was the case of Cougar wingback John Betham (not Bethan).

John has had his name misspelled so many times in programs, news releases and newspaper coverage, that he's probably considering changing his name permanently.

Ah, but the mistakes don't end there.

In covering the OSU-BYU game last Saturday, this reporter credited Reed Gempeler with recovering two fumbles against the Beavers. Reed is red shirting this year; Phil Jensen is the Cougar who deserves the credit.

Sorry Reed, Jon and Phil.

Weekly grid awards

Six Cougar football players received acclaim from the BYU coaching staff for their offensive and defensive play in last Saturday's 29-3 loss to Oregon State at Corvallis, Ore.

Win or lose, after each game three players on offense and three on defense are given special recognition for their effective play.

In choosing those to receive the awards, the Cougar coaches rate each player on a percentage basis, thus gauging their game performance.

Super Cougar, Best Blocker, and Best Play are the offensive awards while the defensive awards are tagged Super Cougar, Mean Cat, and Tackler.

On offense, this week's Super Cougar was Logan Hunter. He was recognized for his six pass completions during the game. Best Blocker was Paul Howard who was commended for his consistent blocking. The Best Play award went to John Monahan for his 33-yard field goal, the only Cougar score.

Defensively, the Super Cougar

pick was Larry Carr. He was given the award for his hustle from sideline to sideline as a linebacker. Mean Cat was Craig Crompton whose tackles of opposing half-backs on flare patterns were outstanding. Tackler award went to Mike Preston for his consistency.

KBYU receives top award

KBYU television has been awarded two Navajo Indian history books in recognition for an outstanding job of televising the All-American Indian Days celebration and the Miss Indian America Pageant at Sheridan, Wyo., in July.

The books were given to KBYU producer Mark Hathaway by John Creighton of Window Rock, Ariz., fair manager for the Navajo Tribe. They are "Navajoland USA, First Hundred Years, 1868-1968," edited by Perry Allen, and "Navajo, A Century of Progress, 1868-1968," edited by Martin A. Link. Both works were published by the Navajo Tribe at Window Rock.

Mr. Hathaway and Bruce L. Christensen, director of Broadcast Services and general manager of KBYU, presented the books this week to Donald K. Nelson, director of the BYU Library, for inclusion in the library's holdings.

This is the second year that KBYU Channel 11 has covered the Sheridan celebration which involves Indian tribes from throughout the country. The station did so well in covering the event last year that it received exclusive television rights for this and next year's celebrations.

KBYU personnel are now putting together a one-hour, full-color documentary on the Indian celebration which will be premiered during BYU's Indian Week Nov. 5-10, Mr. Hathaway said.
